The Corporate Partners Program is a new model for collaboration and communication on environment and sustainability issues—fostering interactive relationships between public and private organizations and UCLA faculty, researchers and students to explore the latest business opportunities in environment and sustainability, corporate environmental performance, successful eco-marketing strategy and promotion of companies’ environmental initiatives.

The Corporate Partners Program supports the high quality research and education provided at the IoES while providing access to a world renown University and a network of professionals and organizations motivated by common goals and interests.

"We benefit from academic research in environmental protection and sustainability, and the students it educates, which, in turn, strengthens us and our ability to serve our customers."

Dr. Rick Greenwood
Director of Environment, Health & Safety
Southern California Edison
