Corporate Partners Program

The Corporate Partners Program establishes a new model for collaboration and communication on environment and sustainability issues.

It fosters interactive relationships between companies and UCLA faculty, researchers, students and other firms to explore the latest business opportunities in environment and sustainability, corporate environmental performance, successful eco-marketing strategy and promotion of companies’ environmental initiatives.

This program supports the high quality research and education provided at the IoES while providing access to a world-renowned University and a network of professionals and organizations motivated by common goals and interests.

“...When, as a business owner you are given an opportunity to associate yourself or to partner with such an organization like the UCLA Institute of the Environment and Sustainability, you don’t think twice—it’s an honor to have our names mentioned together. My staff and I learn through their lecture series and corporate boot camp and we hope to contribute to the diversity by sharing our real world experiences.”
